Govt misleading people, SC on farm laws: Cong

New Delhi: Accusing the Modi government of misleading the Supreme Court on farm laws, Congress Wednesday said that the Centre had claimed pre-legislative consultations on the contentious laws dating back two decades but had cited instances which only underscored its lack of legislative competence on the issue.

AICC spokesman Abhishek Singhvi said the Centre's affidavit filed in the SC on January 11 accused the protesters of peddling lies that the government had held no talks on framing of the farm laws. The said affidavit mentioned two decades of consultations, citing Guru committee of 2000, Model APMC Act of Vajpayee government in 2003, working groups of 2013 and a "model law" of 2017.

Singhvi said the very fact that the  $\,$ Centre has cited "model Acts" as "consultation" proved that it had no power to draft laws on these issues relating to agriculture since model laws were optional for states to adopt or reject. In contrast, the Centre went on to create three all-India laws, he added.

This is a serious example of the Central government misleading the SC and the people of India. It is contempt of court," he remarked.

Congress leader Jairam Ramesh tweeted, "Farm ordinances are passed during lockdown. Parliamentary Committee is NOT allowed to examine Farm Bills. Rajya Sabha MPs

He donated Rs 10,000 and distributed vegetables in the langar on Tuesday, and then went to the city for some time, said Kothi. When he returned, he vomited a couple of times. # Nurse, attendant saved 40 babies, moms from post-natal ward Sarfaraz.Ahmed@timesgroup.com

Nagpur: At least 40 more newborns and their mothers admitted in ward numbers 6 and 7, also known as post-natal care unit ward, too had a miraculous escape from January 9 fire at Bhandara district general hospital.

The neo-natal ward was full with newborns, their mothers and relatives when the rescuers were trying to find a way inside the Sick Newborn Care Unit (SNCU) where a devastating fire left 10 premature babies dead.

BHANDARA FIRE TRAGEDY

The 40 babies are believed to have been saved by nurse Monica Mohankar, attendant Anita Moghre and her husband Sunil Moghre.

The neo-natal ward and SNCU are both located on the first floor of the hospital and share a common door, which the rescuers — a male ICU nurse, two security guards, two nurses, an ambulance driver and telephone operator — were trying to break open to gain entry inside the SNCU. Ultimately, 17 babies (seven alive and 10 dead) were removed by entering the unit through an emergency door above civil surgeon's chamber. Though the rescuers couldn't eventually gain entry into the SNCU from ward numbers 6 and 7, the smoke clouds had starting entering the neonatal ward. Of the 10 dead babies, seven died of asphyxiation. Nurse Monica Mohankar and attendant Anita Moghre were on duty at the ward numbers 6 and 7. On Wednesday, a couple of videos were circulating on social media explaining how Mohankar and Moghre saved 40 babies. The hospital administration has been accused of keeping this incident under wraps.

Project exploring how & when Ram Setu was 'formed' gets ASI nod

Rohan.Dua@timesgroup.com

New Delhi: An underwater exploration project to determine the age of the Ram Setu, a chain of shoals between India and Sri Lanka, and "how" it was formed will begin this year. Scientists who will be working on the project said it would "help determine the age of the Ramayana period." The Central Advisory Board on Archaeology, a body under the Archaeological Survey of India (ASI), approved the proposal by the CSIR-National Institute of Oceanography, Goa, (NIO) last month. "The proposed study will be based on archaeological antiquities, radiometric and thermoluminescence (TL) dating for geological timescale and other supporting environmental data," Dr Sunil Kumar Singh, director, NIO, told TOI. Radiometric dating looks for radioactive impurities to ascertain an object's age. TL dating analyses light released when an object is heated. "Radiometric technique will be used to see if coral or pumic stones exist.
