BACKGROUND

Resolution of stressed assets has become one of the prime objectives. This is more so when code like Insolvency and Bankruptcy Code has become operative in India from 01.12.2016. Banking in India is undergoing a transformation as it experiences greater expectations from customers and rising competition from new banks / FIs. The risk and regulatory issues are also assuming greater importance. Besides, technology has opened new vistas which have had far reaching effects on banking practices. In the prevailing scenario, it is imperative for banks to remain relevant in an increasingly fast changing and demanding scenario. To control the increase of stressed assets and NPA in the economy, effective use of stressed assets management tools and modes of resolution of NPA accounts g becomes imperative.
